At a dinner given to Hon. M. M. Estee, one of the prominent Republicans of the Pacific coast, prior to his departure for Washington, whether he goes as a delegate to the International Congress, he made a few remarks which will be endorsed by all Americans. The deliberations of this Congress, made up of representatives from all the American governments, are liable to have a far reaching and important influence on the higher politics of the world. This move to diplomacy is the great and pet scheme of Secretary Blaine, and if he can bring it to a successful termination, his name will go down in history as one of the great statesmen of the world. Following are the remarks of Mr. Estee:

The establishment of a regular and frequent communication between ports of the several American states and ports of each other, and the adoption of a common silver coin to be issued by each government, the same to be legal tender in all commercial transactions between citizens of all American states. Mr. Estee expressed himself as being strongly in favor of legislation which would bring about these results. Mr. Estee said that nearly all Central and South American nations produce chiefly raw material and manufacture very little. They export to foreign countries what is largely produced in our part of the world. He said the United States was in close proximity to them, and transportation was shorter, and it should be cheaper from this country to any of these South American states than from those countries to Europe. Yet the trade, he said, was practically going against us. Mr. Estee said he was in favor of maintaining by government aid lines of steamers to ports south of the United States. American lines of vessels plying between San Francisco, Australia, Japan and the islands of the Pacific ought also, in his opinion, thus to be aided in making a new highway for trade across the Pacific ocean and divert the traffic of the islands to the United States. While doing this, said the speaker, such provision might be made that in case of war these vessels could be utilized by the general government, and thus in carrying out this system of building up American commerce we would at once aid in creating a navy.

A boy was so severely punished in a prize fight in St. Louis the other evening that he died from the effects of the drubbing he received. This sad affair is directly attributable to the great notoriety given the late fight between Sullivan and Kilrain. All who in any way aided or abetted this fatal prize fight should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The Mexican military company that paraded in Tucson without carrying the American flag should be brought to a realizing sense of the impropriety of their conduct. Their action may have been the result of ignorance, but, nevertheless, they should be made to understand they are in the United States and that such action will not be tolerated in the future.

The following editorial, clipped from the Globe Silver Belt, is presented to our readers as a matter of news. We do not concur with our contemporary as to its deductions, because we consider that the opinion on which they are based was obtained on a misrepresentation of facts as to the time of convening of the Fifteenth legislature. The clipping is given merely to show that other people are beginning to appreciate the far reaching consequences of the attempt to overturn the convention act on a technicality. Several weeks since the DAILY EPITAPH called attention to the disastrous consequences that would ensue should the conspiracy of Wolley, Churchill and Johnson succeed, and we are pleased to see that at least one of the able opponents of the statehood movement is showing an appreciation of the evils sought to be inflicted upon our Territory by a gang of political scoundrels whose thirst for office is insatiable. For no other purpose than to hold onto office these men would plunge the affairs of the Territory into almost interminable confusion, beside which the cost of a constitutional convention would be a drop in the bucket. But Wolley and Churchill must have office at any cost. We appeal to President Harrison to remove this man Wolley, for it is evident that he is entirely and utterly unfit for the position he occupies. Should he be retained the Republican party of Arizona might as well disband, for any good it will be able to accomplish at the polls next year. Following are the remarks of the Silver Belt:

The opinion of the Attorney-General of the United States declaring void the act providing for a convention to frame a State constitution, on the ground that the time when the Fifteenth Legislature could legally be in session had expired before the act was passed and approved, if sustained by the courts, opens the way for almost interminable confusion and complication in the laws of Arizona, since it affects legislation as far back as 1881. The gist of the Attorney General's opinion is that the date when the legislative assembly of Arizona should convene is the first Monday in January. The Eleventh legislature, which met January 3, 1881, passed an act changing the date for the assembling of subsequent legislatures to the second Monday in January. That act, however, was not approved until March 5th, two days after the sixty days to which legislative sessions are limited had expired. Therefore, the Attorney General holds the law as nugatory, and the first Monday in January remained the legal date for the commencement of legislative sessions, from which date the sixty consecutive days must be counted.

The Fourteenth legislature again changed the date for assembling to the third Monday in January, which act is also void on precisely the same grounds. The session of the Fourteenth legislature legally expired on the 7th of March, 1887, and the act (Council Bill 72) changing the date for the assembling of the Fifteenth legislature and subsequent sessions to the third Monday in January was not approved until March 10th. Consequently it is void, and the first Monday in January is still the date for the convening of the legislature.

According to this view, therefore, the Fifteenth legislature should have convened on Monday, the 7th of January, 1889, and the session expired by limitation March 7th, and all legislation approved after that date is void. The effect of this opinion in annulling the convention act is trivial when its bearing on other legislation and its far reaching consequences are considered.

Those who ought to know say that the race for judgeship for this district has narrowed down to Judge Maxwell of this city, and Webster Street of Phoenix, with Maxwell ever so far in the lead.—Star.
